

Dear Mr. or Ms,

I have been working in the industry for years now. And throughout these years, I never had a day where I got bored of what I did. I am very happy to have found the work I truly enjoy and want to be doing for the rest of my life. And since I've decided that I don't want to change what I do - there's no way for me to grow but upwards.

I've been steadily climbing the career ladder with no issues. During my ten years in the industry, I climbed from intern to team lead, familiarizing myself with every single cog of this mechanism. I have gathered plenty of experience, and I understand how this machine works from top to bottom.

I've honed my research skills, marketing techniques, design vision, creative thinking, recruitment, and communication skills. I've learned a lot about team management on virtually every level and have done so successfully for five years. I've also had an opportunity to work independently and build a project from scratch. I have all the qualifications I need to feel confident that I'll be able to take on elevated responsibilities of a senior executive position. The recommendation letters I have collected throughout the years are a testament to that.

I could remain where I am now. But I feel like I could do so much more with my skill set if I had the opportunity to apply it. Since I spent many years on the line, I have an accurate understanding of the average worker's thought process, wants, and needs. And as a senior executive, I am sure I could use this knowledge to both improve their working environment and benefit the business.

I would love to work for your company precisely because its values closely align with my own. I feel like the environment you created within your workplace would be mutually beneficial for the team under my leadership and for me as a professional.

Looking forward to hearing from you soon.

Best regards,
